Job Corps students ‘give back’ through community service

June 15, 2009 - FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

(MANHATTAN, Kansas) – Does the number 781 mean anything to you? This is the number of community service hours students at the Flint Hills Job Corps Center in Manhattan, Kansas have performed since April of 2009, in and around their community. Some of the many projects have included: National & Global Youth Service Day, Westloop Summer Movie Series, I-70 clean up and Fort Riley’s 1st Aviation Brigade Organization Day.

The mission of Job Corps is to empower young adults for a lifetime of success by providing a quality education and career training. Young adults enroll with Job Corps to learn the skills they will need to become independent, employable and positive members of their community.

At the Flint Hills Job Corps Center, students have the opportunity to earn their high school diploma or GED while also gaining skills in one of eight career technical training programs. In addition to offering hands-on training, center trade instructors also emphasize the value of community service by actively lending a hand in the community year round.

Students in each trade are encouraged to find creative ways to use their time, energy and newly attained skills to give back to the community. The center’s goal is to teach students to demonstrate their appreciation by volunteering their time to the community that is giving so much to them.

By carrying out duties ranging from gathering trash at Tuttle Creek to weeding and watering at the Boys & Girls Club to grilling food for Fort Riley soldiers, Flint Hills Job Corps Center students earn a sense of pride by seeing the positive community service they are accomplishing.
